[1] 次の英文を読み、以下の問いに答えなさい。[38点]

There was ①great trouble in the white castle that stood at the top of the hill. It was bitter winter outside. The hill was covered with snow, and the water in the castle garden was frozen. Inside the castle, all the walls and floors were made (②) stone. In the kitchen there was a big fire. It was the warmest fire in the castle, always bright and cheerful. The little Prince always sat in front of ③it before he went to bed. Though ④it burned for many years, one day the big fire in the kitchen suddenly went out. No one was able to light ⑤it again. ⑥It was so cold that everyone blew on their fingers and said that they must do something at once about starting the fire in the kitchen. Some said that the fire needed a special kind of wood to keep ⑦it burning, and others said that ⑧it went out because it was such a hard, cold winter. Still others said that the castle people were fighting too often, and they made the castle too cold for any fire to burn. Everyone in the castle tried to light the fire, but still the fire would not burn.

“Go down the hill road,” the King said to his messenger, “and when you see a bright fire in one of the houses, go inside and ask for some *coals to bring back to the castle. We may be able to light our fire ③in this way.”

So the messenger started out with a great iron *lantern for holding the coals in the bitter cold.

“A light for the castle fire!” he called as he walked down the hill. “④Who (some / give / coals / will / to light / me) the castle fire?”

As the messenger went (⑤) his way, a great many people heard him and they all wanted to help the King light the fire at the castle. Some thought that ⑥to do this would bring them money.

“Here are hot coals for you,” said Gerald, “but I want gold *in return.” So the messenger put Gerald’s red coals inside his lantern, and he started back to the castle. As soon as he ⑦(begin) to walk, however, he found that the coals turned cold and gray. He had to throw them away and search again.

A bright light came from the fire in Gilda’s house. Gilda’s father was one of the King’s soldiers and when she heard the messenger’s call, “A light for the castle fire!” she opened the door and asked him ⑧(come) in. “Fill your lantern (⑨) our coals,” Gilda said, “and they will surely light the fire in the castle. Tell the King that in return for the coals he must make my father a captain.” The messenger took the coals and started back to the castle. Again, the coals ⑩() () () () quickly. So he had to go back down the hill. His search was a hard ⑪one.

(⑫) last he came to a small house on a dark side of the hill. The small house was old and had holes in the walls. The door opened when he knocked, and inside he found a little girl cooking over a small fire.

“A light for the castle fire?” she repeated when she heard his question. “⑬You may (as / coals / you / as / like / many / have), though we have few large ones. I live with my father and this small fire may make him comfortable when he comes home from work. I am cooking his supper, too,” she said. “Will you sit down and warm yourself? You can have a bowl of warm supper before you start out in the cold again. Then you may take our fire for the King.”

⑭The messenger did as the little girl said, and then he lifted one small, bright coal from the fire, and put it in his lantern.

“It will also go out soon,” he said to himself, but with each step the coal grew brighter. It made the dark road in front of the messenger bright, and it warmed him like the sun. When he came back to the castle, the coal still burned. ⑮() () () he put it on the *logs in the fireplace, they *burst into flames, and the castle fire was *alive again.

The new fire warmed the hearts of the castle people and they stopped ⑯(fight). (⑫) last, they believed that it was because love came from the small house, and ⑰it was now alive and burning in the castle fire.

(注) coal: 石炭 lantern: 手さげランプ in return: お返しに

log: 薪(たきぎ・まき) burst into flames: 燃え上がる alive: 生き返った

[2] 次の英文を読み、以下の問いに答えなさい。[27 点]

A hurricane is a *tropical storm with powerful winds and heavy rain. Hurricanes usually last for more than a week, and move about 10 to 20 miles an hour over the ocean. Hurricanes collect heat and energy from warm oceans and use them as power. Because of ①these, hurricanes develop over warm oceans and become stronger and stronger.

When hurricanes come over land, the heavy rain, strong winds, and large waves can *damage buildings, trees, and cars, but they lose their power while they move over the land. Hurricanes turn left around the center of the storm, or “eye”, in *the Northern Hemisphere, and turn right in *the Southern Hemisphere. The center of the storm is the calmest part. It has only (X) winds and (Y) weather. It is usually 20 to 30 miles wide. The winds around ②it are usually the strongest.

What is the difference between a hurricane, a typhoon, and a cyclone? They are the same type of storm. Tropical storms happen in several oceans around the world. The different names show (③) the storm happened. Tropical storms that start in *the Atlantic or Northeast Pacific (near the United States) are called hurricanes. Those that start in the Northwest Pacific (near Japan) are called typhoons. Those that start in the South Pacific and Indian Ocean (near India) are called cyclones.

The Atlantic hurricane season is from June 1 to November 30 every year. An early hurricane happens in ④the first three months of the season and a late hurricane happens in the last three months of the season. But most Atlantic hurricanes happen in the fall months. In winter, hurricanes don't develop in the Atlantic Ocean because the ocean is too cold for hurricanes to happen.

Typhoons are given numbers, but hurricanes are not. Hurricanes have names. How are they named? Every year has a different list of names for Atlantic and Pacific hurricanes. Each year, the first tropical storm of the season is given a name that starts with A, the second storm is given a name that starts with B, and so on. For example, the first Atlantic hurricane in 2011 was named Arlene, the next one was Bret, and after that was Cindy. The letters “Q”, “U”, “X”, “Y”, and “Z”, are not used because there are few common names starting with these letters. The names are recycled after six years, but the names of very terrible storms like Andrew (1992) and Katrina (2005) are never used again.

Hurricanes have led to the death of more than 2,000,000 people over the last 200 years. In 2005, Hurricane Katrina killed more than ⑤1,800 people in the United States because of its surprising storm wave. Preparing for hurricanes is the best way to survive the dangers of them. ⑥Not only people living along the sea but also people living hundreds of miles from it can be injured by hurricanes. Even if there's no risk of a hurricane right now, ⑦it is important to make plans ahead of time.

(注) tropical: 熱帯地方の damage: 被害を与える
the Northern Hemisphere: 北半球 the Southern Hemisphere: 南半球
the Atlantic: 大西洋
