Man : Terrible. I dropped my phone in the bath yesterday. So, it's not working now.

Staff : (①) Do you often take pictures with your phone?

Man : I do. I'm looking for a phone with a good camera.

Staff : I see. This Optico-10X has a wonderful camera. You can take beautiful photos with it. You can even use it in the rain.

Man : That's wonderful. (②)

Staff : It's $1,000. But right now we have a winter sale, so it is $900.

The Optico-Y is the cheaper model. It weighs the least of all the smartphones we offer here. There's also a $50 discount on it.

Man : I see. But it's still too expensive for me. I can't pay more than $800.

Staff : In that case, there's the Eyempact-7 Pro. It is less than $800.

Man : (③) How is the image quality? I often post pictures of food on Instagram. Will they look good?

Staff : Yes, it has an amazing AI system and it will change the image to make it beautiful. (④)

Man : Oh, can I?

Staff : Yes, of course. You can try to take some pictures. Here you are.

Man : Hmm... It's nice and the screen is very beautiful. But, eh..., I'm afraid the screen is too big for my hand.

Staff : (⑤) This is cheaper than the Pro model and still has a good camera.

Man : This one is better. I like it! Can I charge it wirelessly?

Staff : No. It charges very fast, but not wirelessly.

- [8] 枠内に与えられた英文を手がかりにして、最も自然な流れになるように、①～④に入るものを右の選択肢ア～エから1つずつ選び、記号で答えなさい。
ただし、同じ記号は1度しか使えません。

If a disaster happens, can you survive?

【 ① 】

【 ② 】

【 ③ 】

【 ④ 】

Good luck.

《 選択肢 》

- ア After hiding for a few hours, you will be hungry and thirsty. You will want to find food. Find a convenience store or supermarket. It will probably be closed and dangerous, so be careful! Also, it is a good idea to know what plants you can eat, and what animals you can catch for food.
- イ Finally, try to communicate with other people. A smartphone is the best way, because you can get a lot of information and contact people you know. Also, carry some extra batteries with it. A small radio is good, too. You can hear the latest news with it.
- ウ Many people are going to be very scared, but you must be calm. The first thing to do is find a safe place to hide. The usual places people go to escape disasters, like parks, are not safe in a zombie attack. This is because they are wide open. The zombies will see you. The best place to hide is a place with strong walls. Here in Wakayama City, that might be Wakayama Castle.
- エ We all learn about earthquakes. But, what about a zombie attack? What will you do if those monsters come out of the television and into your city? A zombie attack is very dangerous. If they find you, they will eat you.

[9] 次の英文を読み、以下の問いに答えなさい。

Where do dogs come from? How did dogs become the pets we know? Scientists believe that dogs originally came from gray wolves. Wolves and dogs belong (①) the same species. They share more than 99 percent of their DNA. They have strong senses, such as their sense of smell and hearing, and can see clearly in the dark. However, even though some dogs and wolves look similar to each other, dogs have changed in very big ways, and have become very different from wolves. ②Let's look (and wolves / at / between / differences / dogs).

There are some physical differences. Wolves need big, strong teeth to eat bones, but dogs in our house just need to chew their food and bite their toys. Dogs commonly have brown or blue eyes. Wolves, (③), always have ones that are yellow or gold. They have the (④) number of teeth: both have forty-two. However, the ⑤ones our pets have are much smaller. Their hair color is also unique. Dog hair can be many different colors, but wolf hair is generally white, black, gray, or brown because those are the colors in nature. Finally, everything on a wolf is bigger. Their head, their tail, and even their feet. If you see big footprints in the snow, be careful!

Dogs' minds are different from wolves', too. Dogs are often ⑥(call) "man's best friend". Dogs focus their attention very closely on the humans around them and can read their feelings and understand their instructions. (⑦), they understand the meaning of "No" when they are told with gestures. They are very friendly toward humans, and they are not usually afraid (⑧) them. Wolves, however, usually stay far away from humans and run if they get close. If you put a piece of meat in front of a wolf and tell him not to eat it, he will look at you directly in the eyes, not listen to your order, and eat it anyway. Dogs are not like ⑨that at all.

Then, how did some wolves from long ago become modern dogs? One idea was that it was because of humans. In the past, some scientists thought that those wolves became our pets over time because humans ⑩(catch) some wolf puppies and raised them. Since they were useful for hunting, we always kept them with us, and some of them eventually became dogs. The scientists thought that, by doing this, humans made dogs directly over many centuries.

However, more recent research has shown that ⑪this is probably not correct. Wolves eat a very large amount of meat, and even though they are good at ⑫(hunt) in groups, when they kill an animal, ⑬they do not usually want to share it. They would probably compete against humans for food, and so humans would not want ⑭animals like that near them. Perhaps that is one of the reasons why wolves are extinct in many parts of the world. Japan is one example of this. Japanese wolves all died more than a century ago.

Humans did not make dogs from wolves directly. Instead, some groups of wolves made themselves into dogs by living in close contact (⑮) humans, and only long after that humans started to choose them to be pets. Scientists now think that some wolves stopped ⑯(try) to catch wild animals and began to walk around places where humans lived. They survived by eating food ⑰(throw) away by humans. Because of their new lifestyle, their minds and bodies changed. They became , scared of humans and to them, and also became able to read their emotions .

Today, dogs are always with us. We can live, play, and work together. ⑱They are (can / join / so smart / that / they) in our daily lives. We invite them into our homes and love them like family. (⑲), the long history of people and dogs continues.
