[1] 次の英文を読み、以下の問いに答えなさい。

Jack met Debbie at a party. She was wonderful. She was so beautiful. But Jack was only one of many men who liked her, and he was so *ordinary that nobody paid attention to him. So, Debbie didn't notice Jack at the party. But he wanted to meet her.

At the end of the party, Jack invited Debbie to have coffee with him. She was very ①(surprise) but, because she was polite, she agreed. They sat in a nice coffee shop. He tried to say something, but ②he was too nervous to do so. She felt uncomfortable, and she thought to herself, "Please, let me go home."

As they sat silently with their coffee, Jack suddenly asked the waiter, "Would you please give me some salt?" Everybody looked (③) him. Who adds salt to their coffee? So strange! His face became red but still, he put the salt in his coffee and drank it. Debbie couldn't believe ④it, and asked him, "Why did you do that?" Jack replied, "When I was a little boy, I lived near the sea. I liked the taste of the sea, just like the taste of salty coffee. Now when I have salty coffee, I always think of my childhood and my hometown. I miss my hometown so much. I ⑤(are / my parents / still living / miss / who / there)." Debbie was deeply touched. These were his true feelings, from the bottom of his heart. She thought a man who could talk about his feelings must be a man who loves home, cares about home, and understands the importance of home. Then she also started to speak about her hometown far away, her childhood, and family. She didn't feel uncomfortable any more. They talked (⑥) each other (⑦) more than a few hours.

They continued to *date. Debbie ⑧(find) that Jack was actually a man who was perfect for her. He had a kind heart and was warm and careful. He was such a good person.

Thanks to his salty coffee, their story was just like a beautiful love story. The princess married the prince, and then they lived a happy life together. And, every time she made coffee for him, she added some salt to it. She knew that he liked coffee that way. And he always drank all of it, because he loved her. She once asked him,

"(⑨)"

"(⑩)" he replied.

"(⑪)"

"(⑫)"

"I want to try the same coffee as you."

She put some salt in her coffee, and drank some of it. It tasted terrible. So she didn't like it, and ⑬passed him the rest of it. He smiled gently, and drank it. She didn't know why he smiled when he drank salty coffee.

After 40 years, ⑭Jack passed away. He left Debbie a letter. She ⑮(read) it with coffee. The letter said, “My dearest, I'd like to *apologize to you. Please forgive me. Forgive the *lie I've told my whole life. This was the only time I lied to you – the salty coffee.

Do you remember the first time we met? It was (⑯) the party. I tried to invite you, but ⑰I didn't think I could make it. So, I was very nervous, and, although I actually wanted some sugar, I asked the waiter to bring salt. It ⑱(to / hard / what I said / for me / change / was), so I decided to drink it.

I never thought that would be the start of us! I tried to tell you ⑲the truth many times in my life, but I was too afraid to do that, because I promised never to lie to you. I didn't want you to be disappointed with me.

Now I'm ⑳(die). I'm not afraid (㉑) anything, so I can tell you the truth. I don't like salty coffee. What a strange, bad taste! But I have had salty coffee my whole life! And when I drank salty coffee, I always smiled because you made it for me. I sometimes thought about drinking coffee without salt. But I never felt sorry for what I did to be with you. Having you with me was always my biggest happiness. In my next life, I want to be with you again, and still drink your salty coffee. I love you.”

Debbie was not able to stop ㉒(cry). Her ㉓(wet / tears / letter / made / the), and fell into her cup. And because of her tears, her coffee tasted salty. She understood how deeply Jack loved her. Salty coffee was *proof of his love. Now she loved him more than ever. She wanted to meet him again and say, “I love you, too.” She felt like making coffee for him once more, and this time, (㉔) salt.

One day, someone asked her, “What does salty coffee taste like?” She replied, “It's (㉕).” She never forgot how Jack always smiled when he drank salty coffee.

“Koban wa nan desu ka?”

【 ② 】

The *translation “police box” gave me no help. I didn’t know *if the box was as small as a shoebox, or as large as a phone booth. Well, police officers could never fit inside a shoebox! The ideas were endless.

【 ③ 】

In America, people never go to the police station for something as simple as *directions. If you need a police officer’s help, it’s usually in the case of a serious problem. In those cases, people usually call 911, they don’t visit the police station.

【 ④ 】

Since that experience, I have visited koban all over *the Tokyo Metropolitan area, because I get lost often! Every time I visit a koban, it reminds me of what I learned in university, and how much I still don’t understand.

【 ⑥ 】

◀ 選択肢 ①～③ ▶

ア Then, after years of taking tests in Japanese language and history, I graduated from university with a *degree in Japanese studies. As I sat at graduation, I still had one question. What exactly is a koban?

イ This question was on my first Japanese language test in university. I knew the answer. The English word for koban is “police box”. I wrote this down and *passed the test.

ウ Another reason I couldn't imagine the size and shape of a koban is *cultural. In my studies, a koban was a place that people went to when they *got lost. In my textbook, the helpful omawarisan showed a young man a colorful map, and helped him find his way.

カ It was a “*breakthrough experience”. By this, I mean the kind of experience that feels like you are reaching a new level of understanding. Suddenly I understood what a koban was. It was like a mini-police station, only much friendlier and not as scary.

キ I enjoyed my time in Japan and enjoyed learning Japanese that was not in my textbook. Thankfully, the nice omawarisan at the koban were always there to direct me when I got lost.

ク I moved to Tokyo after graduation. I wanted to continue studying Japan outside of my textbooks, and I wanted to finally learn what a koban was. One day my friend and I were in Ginza, and we got lost. Finally, my friend suggested we ask the koban for directions.

(注) translation: 翻訳 if: ～かどうか directions: 道案内
the Tokyo Metropolitan area: 東京都心部 degree: 学位 pass: ～に合格する cultural: 文化的な get lost: 道に迷う breakthrough: 大発見
